Monday morning in the local police court the continued case of Ross Moran at Cheshire and Mrs. S. Chappell of North Windham both charged with reckless driving of automobiles, was taken up. The case is the result of an accident in which the men figured in North Windham on the evening of Friday, November 18. They had previously entered pleas of not guilty.

On the night in question Moran who was driving north to Cheshire collided with the right rear wheel of the Chappell car at the cross over of the state highway on which Chappell was driving towards the North Windham station. Both men stated that they were driving slowly and that their headlights were shining brightly but neither saw the other car until a few feet away and both men did the best in their power to avoid a collision.

State Police Constable E. Hyman testified to taking measurements at the scene of the accident. He said that the Chappell car, which was considerably damaged, was pushed along for about 15 feet by the Moran car. The Moran car then continued on for over 150 feet. Constable Samuel Simpson said that he saw the car coming and that both men had their headlights on. When they crossed over he heard a bang and then went and assisted in whatever way he could. Upon being questioned Constable Simpson stated that Moran told him that Chappell was not making over 12 miles an hour at the time.

Both men were fined $25 and costs with $20 of the fine remitted, totalling an assessment of $11.50 in each case which was paid.

Mrs. Herman Levesque of Danbury is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital this city suffering with a broken left leg as the result of an accident in which she was injured and which took place on the South Windham road recently when the Ford car in which she was riding and which was being driven by her husband, returned over and plowed the occupants under it.

Mr. Levesque turned sharply to take the Windham Court road, opposite the same ground and the car fell over on its side. Mrs. Emily Dickinson who saw the accident from her home ran over and out the top of the automobile allowing the occupants to get out.

Representative-elect Frank P. Fenton of Windham has announced his candidacy for the minority leadership of the house of representatives at the session which convenes in January. Letters have been sent out to all the democratic representatives-elect and Mr. Fenton is confident of the election. He has the assurance of twenty-three votes in Windham, Tolland and New London counties and believes that the other four can be easily secured to give him the majority.

Mr. Fenton has the right to himself for election as leader of the minority in the house and as he has the solid support of Tolland county.

Representative-elect Frank P. Fenton has a good record as an active member of his party for the last twenty-five years. He has always been the leader in the state democratic conventions. He has been a candidate for congressman in the second congressional district, being defeated in 1918 by Congressman Richard P. Freeman. He was a member of the house in 1917 and was a member of several of the house committees. He has been clerk of Windham for twenty-three years and was a delegate in 1908 from the Second Congressional district to the democratic national convention at Denver when William Jennings Bryan was nominated for president.

The representative-elect is a native of Mansfield and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

Under a New York state line in the Hartford Courant the following item of local interest appeared:

Mrs. Josephine A. Kollstedt who gave her residence as Willimantic, Conn., has lost her legal battle for the custody of her ten year old daughter Anita, following her sensational trip to Paris where she was accused by her divorced husband, George Kollstedt, of kidnapping the girl and bringing her back to this country on the shipwrecked Paris which docked here Saturday.

Technicians of the law won out over mother love when the case was heard in the supreme court.

The couple were divorced March 31, 1921. The wife was the plaintiff charging non-support.

She was given her divorce with no alimony, the child being given to the father and he took her to Paris to live with his mother returning himself to America. Mrs. Kollstedt was given $1,000 to go to see the child and returned with her.

Mrs. Kollstedt of New York city said Monday that she has brought action against her former husband to show the reason of what right he had in taking their child out of the country. The case is returnable before a Rhode Island court in Providence, Thursday of this week.

The funeral of George Roy was held Monday morning from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Polidore Delude, 113 Crescent street at 8:30 o'clock followed by a regular mass at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock.

Caron of the Stafford Springs state police barracks on the night of November 13. Paul Lacroix was called as an interpreter. Alvord asked for a continuance of the case to give him time to secure counsel, which was granted, and the case was postponed to Monday, November 27. Alvord was let out on bonds.

The coal and wood shed in the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Randall of 163 Valley street was partially destroyed by fire early Monday morning. The fire broke out at about 1:30 o'clock and it took time to get the fire out. The shed was totally destroyed and the shed almost entirely ruined.

The New delivery truck owned by the Hartman-Boss Corp. was badly damaged Monday morning when the breaks suddenly released and the truck took a plunge down an embankment and landed onto the railroad tracks. The truck had been left standing in the alleyway between the firm's furniture store and the Dolly B. Stanton fancy work shop. When the breaks let go it gained momentum and resulting the tank, took a dive.

Isaac Zollet of Stafford Springs was before the Columbia town court Monday afternoon and given a hearing before Grand Juror Dwight A. Lyman. Zollet was charged with assault on Frank and the jury and a verdict was returned. The affair happened when Zollet called at the home of Bogue and attempted to induce Mrs. Zollet, who made her home with Bogue, to return to Stafford with him. Zollet had to be taken to St. Joseph's hospital as the result of being hit on the head and sustaining a broken nose and several other injuries.

Bogue had a warrant made out for Zollet's arrest. In court Monday Zollet was acquitted of the charge, but the evidence of both parties concerned was heard. It was stated that another and more serious charge against Bogue is pending as a result of investigations made after the affair. Authorities did not care to divulge the nature of the charge but it is expected that Bogue will soon be placed under arrest.

MISS MARGERY LEYDEN

NAMED DISTRICT NURSE

(Special to The Bulletin)
Jewett City, Nov. 20.—At a meeting of the district nurse directors held tonight it was voted to tender the position of district nurse of the town of Griswold to Miss Margery Leyden. Miss Leyden is a Jewett City girl and has graduated from St. Joseph's hospital and the Providence City hospital. She has the record of being the youngest graduate of St. Joseph's hospital and comes to the position fully qualified in her many duties.

JEWETT CITY

The board of town assessors for Griswold are now doing some of the most important part of their regular fall business. In the course of a year many properties change not only in the matter of ownership but in dimension and value. In the agricultural districts considerably outlying from the borough there are many important changes in the stock kept on certain farms. These matters often necessitate a revaluation of the property itself and are adjusted by the board of assessors.

During a visit to the board's offices in the town building one will meet Irving O. Burdick, who is a very capable and efficient service on the board has made him an outstanding figure in his line. The considerably over two million dollars' worth of taxable property in Griswold is as varied as it is valuable, and as in the case of the Wilcox property is as scattered as it is possible to conceive.

In acknowledging these conditions, the value and of a long term assessor becomes apparent. De J. B. Street was such a one, and Mr. Burdick is another. It was said Monday that his extended knowledge of values and locations as applied to taxable properties of Griswold has only been attained by a systematic and careful study of local real estate.

Early risers Saturday morning have been talking ever since about the unusual beauty of the great cloud expanse that appeared in the east 20 minutes before sunrise. The long line from northeast to southeast, extending half way to the zenith, first appeared as a deep colored "mackerel" sky, which was while the people were still in bed, and in crimson and gold by the rising sun.

Frank I. Ray has exhumed the bodies of Edwin Ingraham's first wife and a son and daughter. They were buried in the Baptist cemetery long years ago. Now their remains have been reinterred in the Jewett City cemetery. Mrs. Ingraham was Caleb Lewis' daughter.

In the house-to-house canvass in the Red Cross membership drive a number of persons have not been solicited. Anyone desiring to join the Red Cross may leave their money with the chairman, Miss Ida I. Foster, or with Mrs. J. H. Tracy.

The Ladies' society of the Congregational church met Wednesday with Mrs. Frank E. Robinson.

Packaging grange, chicken, ice, supper, town hall tonight. Don't miss it—guys.

Mrs. T. B. Keen of Norwich was a Sunday caller at the home of Mrs. John T. Stewart.

Following the mild day Sunday, like early September, the weatherman did not expect summer until Monday. At 5 a. m. the sky was cloudless, with all the stars out bright to 3:30 the thunder began, lightning levers was pulled over and until mid-afternoon mild, warm showers were in order. The mills in all parts of the borough found electric illumination necessary nearly all night.

Out of the steady line of automobiles that moved up and down the state road Sunday, one machine with a man and two women passengers pulled up to the W. C. T. U. drinking fountain on Main street. The car bore a Rhode Island registration number. The man possibly had heard about the probabilities of being able to get a drink anywhere in this burg. Taking things for granted, he three confidently approached the fountain. Dryer than the proverbial bone? A man standing near spoke in low tones to the male member of the party. He looked peculiar like, took on a far-away expression, wiped his mouth with his hand and drove off down the street. The party would have liked a drink of water. The observant citizen thought: "An opportunity lost seldom returns."

There was considerable excitement Monday morning when the northbound Boston boat train, with the milk car attached, arrived so much ahead of time that it was able to leave promptly on scheduled time. Passengers ran and milk drivers urged their horses to more speed. As it was, over 200 quarts of milk spilled of connection.

Foreman Thomas Wakley of the A. A. Young, Jr. fire company was called to his mother's home in Central Village by telephone Sunday evening. Mr. Wakley reached there by automobile as quickly as possible, to find that his mother had suffered a severe paralytic stroke. Local doctors and a specialist from Worcester have hopes Monday of possible recovery.

Mr. Wakley is the oldest of six sons. His mother, Mrs. Charles G. Wakley, was a college of Worcester. Mr. Wakley has the sympathy of many friends in the borough.

"She can walk—honest she can!" That's what Jimmy, the orphan said about Ann, who likewise was an orphan and who came to believe that she would always be one. People came and saw Ann's smile, and loved her for it. Then they saw that she was a little lame, and their love chilled. Always they took someone else. Ann smiled just the same, as long as anyone could see her. When the other children weren't about, if Ann cried, well, that's nothing for us to pry into. And Jimmy tried so hard to get her a home. "Honest she can walk," he told one visit. This is but one of the thrilling moments in "Porgy and Bess," the Metro picture at the Broad theatre today. Other pictures on the bill include Charlie Chaplin in A Dog's Life and the Pathe news.

Rachmaninoff

The name itself inspires respect from those who have heard him play—and his offerings be gleaned from other great composers or his own productions, the great Russian's touch is absolutely unerring and his interpretation superbly magnificent.

As an artist who possesses both speed and gift, he so controls the hearts of his listeners that they obey the dictates of his reverential bow.

The Chopin group is the test of the all-round pianist. It is an old axiom of criticism, and Rachmaninoff meets that test nobly. The lively ballade, the poetic nocturnes, the dramatic Scherzos, the superb waltzes are all accompanied with a mastery interpretation that brings delight to the most critical as well as casual listener.

The program which is to be given by Rachmaninoff in concert Wednesday evening (New London) includes a choice group of Chopin productions. The full program will be given in tomorrow's issue of this paper.

Tickets for this concert are now at sale.

The Masquerade Scores as One of Season's Finest Productions at the Strand.

A truly great star has come to the screen in Guy Bates Post, the distinguished actor who opened last night at the Strand theatre in the film version of The Masquerade, a Richard Walton Tully production.

Although he has been acknowledged heretofore as the greatest romantic actor of the day, Post has been naturally tempted to withhold judgment or to make a possible film star until they have witnessed his debut on the silver screen. This has now become a matter of history, and most appropriately his first film vehicle is based on the tremendously successful stage play of the same name, which Post has been identified for over six consecutive years.
